

L'image du Burundi au USA en 2015

1/ <http://www.nytimes.com>

Dec. 28, 2015

Burundi Crackdown Puts Hutus and Tutsis, and the West, on Edge

With rebel attacks and government raids raising tensions between ethnic groups that have a deadly history, the hope is that negotiations set to begin this week will defuse this crisis.

By JEFFREY GETTLEMAN

Dec. 17, 2015

U.N. Rights Council Presses for Inquiry in Burundi

At least 400 people have died since April, a human rights official said, stemming from protests after the president decided to run for a third term.

By NICK CUMMING-BRUCE

Dec. 17, 2015

TIMES VIDEO U.N. Holds Special Session on Burundi

Zeid Ra'ad al-Husseini, the United Nations high commissioner for human rights, called for those committing violence in Burundi to be held to account.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dec. 14, 2015

U.S. Calls for Inquiry Into Rights Abuses in Burundi

The American request to send a team of experts to the African nation will be considered by the

Dec. 12, 2015

Political Violence in Burundi Exacts Growing Toll

Dozens of bodies, some with their hands tied behind their backs, were strewn across the streets of Bujumbura, the capital, on Saturday, a day after coordinated strikes by unidentified gunmen.

By JOSH KRON

Dec. 11, 2015

Burundi Military Sites Raided by Gunmen, Renewing Fears of Chaos

The assaults raised tensions in an African nation pulsing with violence since President Pierre Nkurunziza won a controversial third term in office.

By JOSH KRON

Dec. 9, 2015

WORLD BRIEFING Burundi: 7 Are Killed Amid Turmoil in Capital

Men in police uniforms pulled five people from their houses in the Cibitoke neighborhood and shot them dead on Wednesday.

Dec. 05, 2015

With Burundi's President Sticking to Power, Violence Is on the Rise

Since April, when President Pierre Nkurunziza said he would run for a contentious third term, this country in central Africa has had an ominous cloud hanging over it.

Nov. 23, 2015

U.S. Imposes Sanctions on 4 in Burundi Violence

In an apparent effort to achieve some neutrality, the four men identified include two from the government and two from the opposition.

By JEFFREY GETTLEMAN

Nov. 12, 2015

U.N. Security Council Seeks to Head Off Mass Atrocities in Burundi

The Security Council called for a bolstered international presence in the East African nation but stopped short of sanctions against those who incite violence.

By SOMINI SENGUPTA

Nov. 06, 2015

West Fears Burundi Is on Brink of Conflict

Western diplomats and analysts say Burundi could explode in violence when a deadline for opposition groups to disarm expires Saturday.

By JEFFREY GETTLEMAN

Nov. 06, 2015

NICHOLAS KRISTOF Mass Atrocities Looming in Burundi?

Leaders of Burundi are using language that recalls the run-up to the genocide in Rwanda next door. The international community needs to act urgently to avert what may be a humanitarian catastrophe.

By NICHOLAS KRISTOF

Nov. 02, 2015

WORLD BRIEFING Burundi: A Deadline to Disarm

After months of protests over his July re-election, President Pierre Nkurunziza said Burundians must surrender illegal firearms by Saturday.

By REUTERS

Sept. 08, 2015

WORLD BRIEFING Burundi: Spokesman for Opposition Party Is Killed

Witnesses heard gunshots in the Gasenyi district of the capital, Bujumbura, on Monday evening and then found Patrice Gahungu dead in his car.

By REUTERS

Aug. 03, 2015

Fragile Burundi Casts a Wary Eye on Rwanda

As distrust deepens between the countries, Burundian officials say that Rwanda played a part in a coup attempt to stop the president from securing a third term.

By MARC SANTORA

July 27, 2015

WORLD BRIEFING Burundi: U.N. Observers Call Presidential Vote Flawed

The observers' preliminary statement notes that the news media were restricted and freedom of expression and assembly was "severely impaired."

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

July 24, 2015

Burundi President Wins 3rd Term in Election Boycotted by Rivals

President Pierre Nkurunziza's bid to retain his office set off street protests, a crackdown, a failed coup attempt and international condemnation.

By MARC SANTORA

July 21, 2015

TIMES VIDEO Burundi's President Speaks Before Vote

President Pierre Nkurunziza of Burundi spoke on Tuesday before casting his vote in the election, in which he is seeking a third term in office, saying it was a crucial day for the country.

Reuters

July 21, 2015

As Burundians Vote in Presidential Election, Many Are Afraid to Pick a Side

Voters went to the polls after overnight explosions in the capital, Bujumbura, but opposition parties boycotted the election over the president's bid for a third term.

By MARC SANTORA

July 20, 2015

In Burundi, President Pierre Nkurunziza's Push for Power Is Marked by Bloodshed

The lead up to Tuesday's election, in which Mr. Nkurunziza is seeking another term after 10 years in office, has been marked by violence that experts say could escalate quickly.

By MARC SANTORA

July 20, 2015

SLIDE SHOW Burundi Nears Presidential Election

The lead up to the election in Burundi has been marked by scores of deaths, street protests, the silencing of independent media and a failed

July 17, 2015

Burundi President Presses On in Disputed Re-election Effort

President Pierre Nkurunziza is seeking a third term in Tuesday's vote; his opponents maintain that he is not entitled.

By MARC SANTORA

July 11, 2015

WORLD BRIEFING | AFRICA Burundi: Presidential Election Delayed

Burundi's presidential election has been postponed by nearly a week, a presidential spokesman said Saturday.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

July 07, 2015

WORLD BRIEFING Burundi: Victory for Governing Party

Burundi has been rocked by protests because of President Pierre Nkurunziza's push for a third term in office in elections set for next Wednesday.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

July 01, 2015

WORLD BRIEFING

Burundi: 6 Are Killed During Protests

Burundi has been hit by violence since the announcement that the governing party had nominated President Pierre Nkurunziza to be its presidential candidate.
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

June 29, 2015

LENS

June 29, 2015 — Pictures of the Day

Photos from Burundi, Egypt, Spain and Greece.
By THE NEW YORK TIMES

June 29, 2015

SLIDE SHOW

Pictures of the Day: Burundi and Elsewhere

Burundi and More — Pictures of the Day

June 29, 2015

Burundi Holds Elections After Night of Gunfire and Grenade Attacks

Despite international calls for the postponement of parliamentary and local balloting, the government pressed ahead, saying that a delay would only add to instability.
By MARC SANTORA

June 26, 2015

Grenades, Fear and Uncertainty Become Routine as an Election Nears in Burundi

With the independent news media largely forced into silence, rumor is often taken as fact and political tension can quickly lead to street violence.
By MARC SANTORA

June 26, 2015

Voices From Burundi

Before legislative and presidential elections in Burundi, The New York Times asked citizens how the political unrest there affected them.
By SHREEVA SINHA

June 25, 2015

TIMES VIDEO

Burundi Official on Fleeing Country

Gervais Ruyikiri, one of Burundi's vice presidents, explains why he fled to Belgium after denouncing President Pierre Nkurunziza's bid for a third term in office.
France 24

June 25, 2015

Burundi Students Enter U.S. Embassy as Political Tensions Escalate

Scores of students, seeking refuge from the noxious, entered the safety

June 23, 2015

CONTRIBUTING OP-ED WRITER

Burundi's Bit-Part Politics

A presidential power grab has jeopardized the modest gains the country made as a regional player in Africa.
By CHARLES ONYANGO-OBBO

June 22, 2015

LENS

June 22, 2015 — Pictures of the Day

Photos from Pakistan, Russia, Kenya and Burundi.
By THE NEW YORK TIMES

June 20, 2015

Assailants Target Police in Burundi

Eleven police officers were wounded overnight when gunmen hurled grenades and attacked police stations across Bujumbura, Burundi's capital.
By REUTERS

June 10, 2015

Embattled Burundi President Sets New Dates for Elections

President Pierre Nkurunziza said legislative elections would be held June 29, and the presidential vote July 15, despite continuing protests over his plan to seek another term.
By SADI NIYUNGEKO and ISMAIL KUSHKUSH

June 04, 2015

Burundi Postpones Elections Amid Violence

President Pierre Nkurunziza's decision to seek a third term touched off weeks of protests that left dozens of people dead and drove tens of thousands to flee the country.
By MARC SANTORA

June 03, 2015

WORLD BRIEFING

Burundi: Elections Delayed Amid Crisis

Frequent protests have left more than 30 people dead so far, activists say, and the turmoil made a timetable for parliamentary voting on Friday untenable.
By REUTERS

May 28, 2015

Burundi's Catholic Church Withdraws Support for Elections

The church said it would withdraw its priests appointed to help organize elections next month that are at the heart of the country's upheaval.
By SADI NIYUNGEKO

May 23, 2015

Burundi Opposition Leader Is Killed

Gunmen shot Zedi Feruzi and his bodyguard in the capital on Saturday. Mr. Feruzi and others have said the president's plan to run for a third term is unconstitutional.
By REUTERS

May 22, 2015

Political Unrest Pushes Burundi Closer to Economic Collapse

Amid violent protests, the crisis over the president's pursuit of a third term has begun to take a severe toll on day-to-day life in one of the world's poorest countries.
By ISMAIL KUSHKUSH

May 18, 2015

OP-ED CONTRIBUTOR

Bridging Burundi's Dangerous Divisions

Central Africa cannot afford to let the president's irresponsible wish for a third term tip the country into ethnic strife.
By ETIENNE MASHULI and JOHNNIE CARSON

May 18, 2015

Hundreds Protest in Burundi's Capital in Defiance of Ban

Officials warned against demonstrations after a failed coup attempt last week. At least 20 people have died in the unrest after President Pierre Nkurunziza's decision to run for a third term.
By ISMAIL KUSHKUSH

May 17, 2015

Burundi President, Surviving Coup, Warns of a Threat From Shabab

Many feared that President Pierre Nkurunziza's warning about the Somali militant group was an excuse to criminalize antigovernment protesters.
By ISMAIL KUSHKUSH

May 15, 2015

OPEN SOURCE

Opposition Activists in Burundi Fear Crackdown After President's Return

Amid a failed coup attempt and armed attacks on independent radio stations, protesters fear free expression could be curtailed sharply in Burundi.
By ROBERT MACKAY

May 15, 2015

Burundi Government Says It Has Crushed Coup Attempt

It was by no means clear that stability would soon return to Burundi, which has suffered a long history of upheavals.

May 15, 2015

Burundi Government Says It Has Crushed Coup Attempt

It was by no means clear that stability would soon return to Burundi, which has suffered a long history of upheavals.
By SADI NIYUNGEKO and DAN BILEFSKY

May 14, 2015

Uncertainty Reigns in Burundi After Attempted Coup

Gunfire and explosions were heard in the capital a day after a general announced a takeover, but it was not clear who was in control of the central African country.
By ISMAIL KUSHKUSH and DAN BILEFSKY

May 14, 2015

TIMES VIDEO

Gunfire Heard in Burundi

Residents fled from gunfire in Burundi's capital, Bujumbura, the day after an army general said a coup had overthrown President Pierre Nkurunziza. It was not clear who was in charge of the country.

By REUTERS

April 27, 2015

WORLD BRIEFING

Burundi: Police Try to Subdue Protesters Denouncing Leader's Plan to Run Again

The police fired tear gas and water cannons on Monday at protesters who blocked roads with tires and large stones to show opposition to President Pierre Nkurunziza's plan to run for a third term.

By REUTERS

May 13, 2015

Political Turmoil Returns to Burundi as President Seeks New Term

At least 20 have been killed in recent weeks in the tumult over President Pierre Nkurunziza's decision to seek another term, and more than 50,000 people have fled to neighboring countries.

By ISMAIL KUSHKUSH

Jan. 05, 2015

WORLD BRIEFING

Congo: Rebels Under Attack

United Nations and Congolese troops launched airstrikes and a ground offensive against remnants of a Burundian rebel group based in an eastern region of the Democratic Republic of Congo, a United Nations military spokesman said.

By REUTERS

May 13, 2015

Burundi General Claims to Oust President Pierre Nkurunziza

The army general announced Wednesday on a private radio station that the military had ousted the leader amid protests in Burundi.

By ISMAIL KUSHKUSH

May 13, 2015

TIMES VIDEO

Protests in Burundi Against President

Protesters clashed with the police in Burundi's capital, Bujumbura, on Wednesday during a demonstration against the president's bid for a third term amid conflicting reports of his dismissal.

By REUTERS

May 12, 2015

LENS

May 12, 2015 — Pictures of the Day

Photos from Nepal, Burundi, Pakistan and Germany.

By THE NEW YORK TIMES

May 07, 2015

WORLD BRIEFING

Burundi: Protesters Attack President's Supporters

Protesters in the capital, Bujumbura, assaulted people suspected of being members of the governing party's youth group on Thursday as the upheaval over the president's bid for a third term persisted.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

May 06, 2015

WORLD BRIEFING

Burundi: President Says Third Term Would Be His Last

Confronted by protests that have left a dozen people reported dead and driven thousands to flee the country, President Pierre Nkurunziza said that if he is re-elected next month, he will not run for office again.

By REUTERS

May 05, 2015

Burundi Court Backs President's Bid for Third Term

Six of the seven justices of the constitutional court approved President Pierre Nkurunziza's bid. The holdout refused to sign, called it illegal and fled to Rwanda.

By ISMAIL KUSHKUSH

May 02, 2015

WORLD BRIEFING

Burundi: 3 Die in Grenade Attacks

Three people have died in grenade attacks in Bujumbura, the capital, a spokesman for the public security ministry said Saturday.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

May 01, 2015

WORLD BRIEFING

Burundi: U.S. Protection Sought

About 500 students spent Thursday night outside the United States Embassy in Burundi's capital, seeking protection.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

April 28, 2015

OP-ED CONTRIBUTOR

Burundi on the Brink

The unrest could explode into a regional crisis, yet international efforts to contain it have been clearly insufficient.

By JEAN CLAUDE NKUNDWA and JONATHAN W. ROSEN

The Washington Post :

- 19 nov. 2015 : The Washington Post : Rwanda Preparing War against Burundi ! – under the eyes of the U.S.A ?

Burundi: Thousands protest African Union plan to deploy peacekeepers

Officials insist that Burundi's army is capable of halting violence and protecting all Burundians.

Foreign | Dec 26, 2015

There are signs of renewed ethnic violence in Burundi

But the politics of calling what is currently happening in Burundi "ethnic violence" are complicated.

Cara E. Jones | Politics | Dec 15, 2015

Burundi's government suspends 10 civic groups amid unrest

Burundi's government on Monday suspended the licenses of 10 non-governmental organizations over allegations they have been involved in anti-government activities.

Associated Press | Foreign | Nov 23, 2015

The world should act now to help prevent atrocities in Burundi

The world should heed the warning signs before the country plunges into chaos.

Editorial Board | Editorial-Opinion | Nov 14, 2015

UN condemns Burundi killings, threatens possible sanctions

The U.N. Security Council unanimously approved a resolution Thursday condemning killings in Burundi and threatening sanctions, while international leaders urgently called for the government and opposition to meet amid fears that the African nation is at risk of genocide.

Edith M. Lederer | AP | Foreign | Nov 12, 2015

Asesor presidencial en Burundi sobrevive a ataque armado

Un asesor del presidente de Burundi sobrevivió el viernes a un aparente intento de asesinato, cuando hombres armados abrieron fuego contra su vehículo mientras era conducido al trabajo, en un hecho que subraya la creciente inseguridad en la nación centroafricana.

Associated Press | National | Nov 27, 2015

Group: 60 people treated following attacks in Burundi

Doctors Without Borders says 60 injured people were treated Monday after suffering injuries in grenade explosions in different parts of Burundi's capital.

Associated Press | Foreign | Nov 18, 2015

US warns Burundi leaders over killings, urges dialogue

The U.S. envoy to Africa's Great Lakes region on Tuesday urged Burundi's government and the opposition to start internationally mediated talks without pre-conditions in order to end the country's political crisis.

Elgie Willy Kanenza | AP | Foreign | Nov 10, 2015

Obama to remove Burundi from African trade pact

President Barack Obama says Burundi isn't making enough progress toward establishing rule of law and will be removed from a U.S. trade preference program for African countries.

Associated Press | Business | Oct 30, 2015

Burundi army: 87 people killed in Friday violence

The violence is part of turmoil that has racked the nation since the president announced he wanted a third term.

Elgie Willy Kanenza | Foreign | Dec 12, 2015

Burundi: Presidential adviser survives attack by gunmen

An adviser to Burundi's president survived an apparent assassination attempt Friday when gunmen opened fire at his vehicle while he was being driven to work, highlighting the growing insecurity in the central African nation.

Ignatius Savuna | AP | Foreign | Nov 27, 2015

US imposes sanctions related to violence in Burundi

President Barack Obama is imposing sanctions against individuals in Burundi the U.S. says are contributing to violence in the African nation.

Associated Press | Washington | Nov 23, 2015

At least 4 killed in latest violence in Burundi's capital

At least four people were killed in overnight violence in the Burundi capital, the police said Sunday as sporadic gunfire and loud explosions continued to echo across the city.

Elgie Willy Kanenza and Ignatius Savuna | AP | Foreign | Nov 22, 2015

Witnesses: 5 killed in overnight violence in Burundi

Three grenades exploded Monday in different parts of Burundi's capital following a night of violence in which five people, including a policeman, were killed, witnesses and the police said Monday.

Elgie Willy Kanenza | AP | Foreign | Nov 16, 2015

Despite genocide warnings, Burundi says it's 'not in flames'

"Burundi is not in flames," its foreign minister said Monday, dismissing international concerns that his country is at risk of a Rwanda-like genocide. But reports of killings by police continued, and France circulated a U.N. Security Council draft resolution threatening sanctions.

Cara Anna | AP | Foreign | Nov 10, 2015

Witnesses: 9 killed in attack on bar in Burundi's capital

At least nine people were killed in an overnight attack at a bar in the latest violence in Burundi's capital, witnesses said Sunday, as security forces went door-to-door to disarm civilians in neighborhoods seen as opposition strongholds.

Elgie Willy Kanenza | AP | Foreign | Nov 8, 2015

Testigos: 9 muertos en nuevo ataque en capital de Burundi

Al menos nueve personas fallecieron en un ataque ocurrido durante la noche en un bar, el último acto violento registrado en la capital de Burundi, Buyumbura, dijeron testigos el domingo.

Por Elgie Willy Kanenza | AP | Foreign | Nov 8, 2015

UN backs investigation of human rights violations in Burundi

The U.N. Security Council on Wednesday strongly backed the African Union's decision to investigate human rights violations in Burundi and also pledged to respond to any actions that threaten peace, security and stability in the troubled central African nation.

Edith M. Lederer | AP | Foreign | Oct 29, 2015

Should we be using the G-word in Burundi?

Burundi is at high risk of violence. But if the worst happens, it won't be a genocide. That distinction matters.

Kate Cronin-Furman and Michael Broeche | monkeycage | Nov 15, 2015

US envoy in Uganda to encourage Burundi peace talks

Washington stepped up efforts to end bloodshed in Burundi Friday by sending a regional envoy to Uganda to encourage talks to resolve the crisis, a Ugandan official said Friday.

Rodney Muhumazi | AP | Foreign | Nov 13, 2015

ONU condena asesinatos en Burundi, teme "posible genocidio"

El Consejo de Seguridad de Naciones Unidas aprobó el jueves por unanimidad una resolución que condenaba los asesinatos en Burundi y amenazaba con sanciones, mientras varios líderes internacionales instaban al gobierno y la oposición a reunirse con urgencia ante el temor de que la nación africana corra el riesgo de sufrir un genocidio.

ONU condena asesinatos en Burundi, teme "posible genocidio"

El Consejo de Seguridad de Naciones Unidas aprobó el jueves por unanimidad una resolución que condenaba los asesinatos en Burundi y amenazaba con sanciones, mientras varios líderes internacionales instaban al gobierno y la oposición a reunirse con urgencia ante el temor de que la nación africana corra el riesgo de sufrir un genocidio.

Por Edith M. Lederer | AP | National | Nov 13, 2015

Son of human rights activist killed in Burundi, alarm grows

The son of a human rights activist in Burundi was killed after being arrested Friday, a witness said, as international concern grew that a bloodbath might be imminent in the central African country.

Elgie Willy Kanenza | AP | Foreign | Nov 6, 2015

Burundians flee capital ahead of looming security crackdown

Carrying prized possessions, scores of people fled Burundi's capital Saturday before a looming security crackdown that many fear will be a wave of violence.

Elgie Willy Kanenza | AP | Foreign | Nov 7, 2015

Burundi: Huyen de la capital por temor a ola de violencia

Llevando sus pertenencias más preciadas, decenas de personas huyeron de la capital de Burundi el sábado ante el temor de una ola de violencia por un operativo de seguridad que emprenderá el gobierno.

Por Elgie Willy Kanenza | AP | Foreign | Nov 7, 2015

Asesinan en Burundi a hijo de activista de derechos humanos

El hijo de un prominente activista por los derechos humanos fue asesinado tras ser arrestado el viernes en Burundi, aseveró un testigo, al tiempo que se incrementó la preocupación internacional de que se avenge un derramamiento de sangre en este país centroafricano.

Por Elgie Willy Kanenza | AP | Foreign | Nov 7, 2015

UN decries violence in Burundi after 9 civilians killed

The U.N. human rights office is expressing concerns about "rapidly worsening" security and respect for human rights in Burundi after the shooting deaths of at least nine civilians in the capital.

Associated Press | Foreign | Oct 23, 2015

Amid unexplained killings, Burundi descending into anarchy

Bodies keep turning up in Burundi, dumped at roadsides and in streams. Mass arrests are being carried out.

Elege Willy Kananza and Rodney Muhumuzi/AP | Foreign | Oct 1, 2015

Concern as Burundi army major goes absent without leave

An army major in Burundi who is the deputy commander of an elite infantry unit failed to show up for work on Monday, sparking speculation he has defected, a spokesman for the country's military said Monday.

Elege Willy Kananza/AP | Foreign | Sep 28, 2015

UN rights chief alarmed about arrests, killings in Burundi

The U.N. human rights chief is expressing concerns about arrests, detentions and "unexplained killings" in Burundi.

Associated Press | Foreign | Sep 28, 2015

Burundi's President Nkurunziza wins controversial third term

There were neither celebrations nor protests in the streets of the capital after the results were announced.

Gerard Nshababona | World | Jul 24, 2015

Video

U.S. dismisses 'free' Burundi election as polls close

Polls closed in Burundi's controversial presidential election on Tuesday, which has been marred by violence and criticized by the U.S. as not being a "free, fair or credible election."

World | Jul 22, 2015

Why the experts are worried about Burundi

Burundi votes today and the outcome is a foregone conclusion. Is violence inevitable?

Cora F. Jewell | Politics | Jul 21, 2015

Video

Burundi violence escalates amid reports of coup

Police and protesters continue to clash in Burundi during a demonstration against the president's bid for a third term, despite a Burundian military officer announcing President Pierre Nkurunziza's dismissal.

World | May 13, 2015

Video

Police clash with protesters in Burundi

Police fire guns, tear gas and water cannon at protesters throwing stones during a demonstration against incumbent president's bid for a third term.

World | May 13, 2015

An electoral crisis in Burundi

The president's decision to run for a third term could prove tragic for citizens.

Is Burundi still a credible peacekeeper?

The U.S. just suspended peacekeeping training programs for Burundi's army, a top contributor to the AMISOM mission in Somalia. Why is Burundi so important to peacekeeping in Africa, and what will happen in Somalia as donor support disappears?

Nina Wilen, Gerard Bantamije and David Ambrosetti | Politics | May 23, 2015

What Burundi's crisis says about U.N. capacity to build peace

The recent Burundi crisis coincides with a review of UN Peacebuilding, which was supposed to save Burundi from backsliding into war.

Susanna Campbell | Politics | May 18, 2015

While Burundi's president is out of the country, military declares a coup

Burundians celebrated even though it wasn't clear whether the military had been able to consolidate power.

Abigail Higgins | Africa | May 14, 2015

What Burundi's crisis says about U.N. capacity to build peace

The recent Burundi crisis coincides with a review of UN Peacebuilding, which was supposed to save Burundi from backsliding into war.

Susanna Campbell | Politics | May 18, 2015

While Burundi's president is out of the country, military declares a coup

Burundians celebrated even though it wasn't clear whether the military had been able to consolidate power.

Abigail Higgins | Africa | May 14, 2015

Burundi Faso? Coups, revolutions and what's next for Burundi

A military coup is underway in Burundi. What is happening on the ground and could this actually be a good sign for democracy and peace in the struggling nation?

E. Jenik, Alex Rippen and Stephanie Schwartz | Politics | May 13, 2015

Video

Protesters continue stand off in streets of Burundi

Hundreds of protesters were back on the streets of Bujumbura on May 4, starting a second week of demonstrations to demand that President Pierre Nkurunziza abandon his bid for a third term in office.

World | May 4, 2015

Video

Protests against Burundi president enters fifth day

Anti-government protesters clashed with police in Burundi's capital city of Bujumbura as they demonstrated against President Pierre Nkurunziza's decision to seek a third term.

National | May 1, 2015

Thousands of refugees pour into Rwanda from Burundi

A political conflict in Burundi leads to violent clashes and fears of war.

Kevin Sief | Africa | May 12, 2015

Political crisis raises fears of widespread bloodshed in Burundi

Protesters oppose a move by the president to stay on for a third term.

Abigail Higgins | Africa | May 8, 2015

Five things you should know about the political crisis in Burundi

Insights on who the important actors and institutions are and how other countries might respond.

Ken Opale | Politics | May 3, 2015

Protests in Burundi build over president's seeking a third term

As the government tries to halt demonstrations, hundreds ask the United States for protection.

Africa | May 2, 2015

U.S. to Burundi's leader: Country may explode if political critics are silenced

Violent protests against the president's decision to seek a third term entered a fifth day.

Edmund Blair and Patrick Ndwimana | World | May 1, 2015

What explains Burundi's protests?

Violent demonstrations erupted in Burundi against the president's announced candidacy for a third term. What should the international community do as Burundi's electoral season continues?

Chris E. Jewell and Stephanie Schwartz | Politics | Apr 28, 2015

Are elections straining Burundi's fragile peace?

Burundi's elections are only a few months away, but signs of stress on the country's fragile peace are increasing.

Stephanie Schwartz | Politics | Mar 27, 2015

